What next for NHS providers and people with learning disabilities

Rob Webster, Chief Executive of NHS Confederation
Some of what is needed can be brought about by the NHS itself.

Other actions need new partnerships with local communities, local authorities and employers.
Second, the NHS will take steps to break down the barriers in how care is provided between family doctors and hospitals, between physical and mental health,

To support these changes, the national leadership of the NHS will need to act clearly together, and make sure that the rules and ways of working are able to be flexible to local needs. We will support local leadership with new ideas.
‘People with a learning disabilities have the right to the same opportunities as anyone else to live satisfying and valued lives.

...they should expect to get the support they need to be healthy, safe and an active part of society.’

Case study – Retail Charity Bonds

In 2014, the first charity bond to be listed on the London Stock Exchange’s Order Book for Retail Bonds was launched.

The bond, which raised £11 million to fund accommodation for people with a learning disability, was so oversubscribed it closed its offer period two and half weeks early.

The bond was launched by Retail Charity Bond plc and the funds have been used by Golden Lane Housing, the national charity which provides housing for people with a learning disability, to invest in buying and adapting much-needed community based housing across the country for over 100 people with a learning disability.
