

Job Description for Inclusion North Chief Executive

The job of the Chief Executive is
	To work with the Board of Directors to run the company well and follow the Law
	To make sure the Board of Directors is accessible for everyone
	To help the Board of Directors to manage the money well
	To find new work and new ways of earning money without forgetting what Inclusion North is set up to do
	To make sure Inclusion North have the policies we need to run the company well and follow the Law
	To plan for the future so that Inclusion North does the work that is important and needed
	To help make sure Inclusion North stick to our values in everything we do
	To lead the Inclusion North staff team so that they feel supported to do their work and achieve their full potential

The job of the Chief Executive is
	To work with the Inclusion North Advisory Council so that we always hear the voice of people with a learning disability, autistic people and family carers
	To make sure Inclusion North think about diversity, equality and inclusion in all the work we do, so that everyone can have a voice and be included
	To make sure that people know about Inclusion North and the work we do, locally, regionally, nationally and internationally
	To make sure Inclusion North get feedback about our work, to check our work is good quality and to understand whether what we do makes a difference
	To make sure Inclusion North build partnerships with other organisations locally, regionally, nationally and internationally
	To make sure Inclusion North stay up to date when the Law and policy changes
	To make sure Inclusion North are connected to the important pieces of work that come from national policy changes

Updated January 2022