

Families Listening Project Stockton

Research last year told us that families don't feel listened to, that their support networks are reducing and they are becoming more isolated. The Families Listening Project is a response to this. We want to better understand people's experiences.

Are you a family carer for someone with a learning disability, autism or both?
Have you supported your loved one through a period of change, for example transition between children and adult services, a move from home to live more independently, starting work or something else?

Inclusion North will work with you individually, or as part of a group, to tell your story in your own way and decide how and where this is shared. The Listening Project aims to increase understanding and potentially influence change where needed.

Stockton Borough Council are supportive of the work Inclusion North are doing through The Listening Project. This work will be running until the end of March 2019. To discuss how to get involved contact

Kirsty@inclusionnorth.org
07539063467

