Positive Behaviour Support

Positive Behaviour support is often called PBS.

PBS is a way of working with people to understand what support they need to feel happy and keep safe.

Sometimes, if people get really upset, they may hurt themselves or other people.

PBS is a way of learning about what may make someone feel very upset and stopping that from happening.

PBS is often used as a way of supporting people with a learning disability and autistic people.

Some people have good experiences of PBS.

Some people have bad experiences of PBS.

Learning Disability England wants to know more about what people think of PBS and their experiences.

They have made an online survey for people to tell them what they think.

You can use this link to see and fill in the survey.

Learning Disability England will use people's feedback to plan what they do next.
